The collaboration challenge

Outline

Why do you employ 100s and 1000s of minds who then try to solve most problems alone? Why, at a time when customers are crying out for co-creation, do leaders feel that collaboration slows down business? Why does it feel so risky to let go of control and put our success in the hands of others? The answer is simple:

collaboration is complex and subtle and organizations just aren't built for that

In this fast-paced, dynamic and engaging presentation Emmanuel shows how, in today's context, collaboration and co-creation inside and outside the organization is the only way to succeed. Only by developing the climate and capabilities that enable others to succeed can leaders claim the collaboration advantage.

The takeaways

Delegates will leave with an understanding of the following:

- How collaboration speeds up rather than slows down business
- The value of collaboration
- When collaboration helps and hinders
- How to create communities of value that make organizations more agile
